A little girl and her dog want to build something, but when they reach her favorite spot to create, they find the neighbor girl and her cat already there. They decide to build something together, but quickly discover they have completely different ways of working. One rushes ahead, cutting and hammering, while the other prefers to measure and calculate carefully. Tension rises as they realize they had completely different visions of what they would make. The question is: will they be able to find a way to work together?
